Mayor, Brown bicker over budget

Warsaw City Councilman Nelson Brown had sharp criticism for Mayor C.E. French and City Clerk Carolyn Marksberry at last Tuesday's Special Warsaw City Council meeting (May 15).

Council had begun discussing a proposed fiscal year budget for the cash-strapped City of Warsaw when Brown expressed his displeasure with the scheduling.

"Why didn't we get this in February or January?" he asked. "The county got their plans three months ago.

Marksberry, who had given council an introductory plan, replied that, unlike the county, she depends on insurance figures from the Kentucky League of Cities and that information had just arrived.

Nonetheless, Brown had further criticism about the scheduling, saying: "We've had plenty of time to talk about this for months and we're just getting this now. It comes down to (Mayor French and Marksberry) making this decision and the council will have nothing to do with it. We're going to be blind just like in the past. Don't keep us blind or lie to us."

Mayor French responded, "I've never lied to you, if you want to go through 25 plans, we'll go over each one of them."

Among the difficult decisions for the council is how to provide insurance for the city's nine employees with costs escalating. The City of Warsaw is currently operating under a $195,000 budget deficit.

Council planned to meet in a special session Tuesday night (May 22) to discuss the new budget, which will go into effect on July 1.

Among the changes discussed were cutbacks See City Council, page 3

Amelia Samuel wins major scholarship

Gallatin County High School senior Amelia Samuel has won many honors and accomplishments during her 18 years but she has now achieved something no other student in the county has ever done.

Amelia has won the National Merit Scholarship, something only one percent of all graduating seniors across the country can claim. Of the 1.5 million entrants, about 50,000 qualify for recognition. Only a third of the 50,000 become Semifinalists and about half of the Finalists are selected to receive scholarships underwritten by corporations and business organizations, colleges and universities, and by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. (NMSC) with its own funds. Of the approximately 15,000 Finalists, about 8,200 receive Merit Scholarship Awards, but only 2,500 are awarded the National Merit Scholarship.

She was recently notified she was among the select few to qualify and be named a winner of the prestigious award. Amelia's name is now included in the list of other National Merit Scholars, a few of whom are Microsoft founder Bill Gates, Indiana Governor Mitch Daniels, and U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Susan Rice.

As a finalist for the National Merit Scholarship, Amelia was awarded a Patterson Scholarship, a full four-year scholarship to her first choice of universities, the University of Kentucky. In addition to tuition and housing, the scholarship will provide Amelia with a $1,000 yearly stipend, an iPad2, and $2,000 for a Summer Education Abroad program.

Amelia will seek a degree in mechanical engineering.

She is the daughter of Dale and Kim Samuel of Sparta.

Voter turnout was low

Even though incumbent President Barack Obama did not have opposition in Kentucky, he did not run well in Gallatin County on Election Day. Obama got 194 Democrat votes here while "Uncommitted" tallied 198.

Mitt Romney was the favorite among the county Republicans in the race to be the Republican candidate for President with 124 votes.

Tom Massie carried the county with 96 votes in the race for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Congress in this district. His closest challenger was Alecia Webb-Edgington with 55. Massie ran well across the district and easily won the race.

In the Democrat Primary for Congress, William Adkins got 240 votes here while his opponent, Greg Frank, received 117. Adkins also carried the district.

In Gallatin County, Camilla Kay Patton beat Wanda Crupper Hammons 225 to 168 in the Democratic Primary for the State House. Hammons, however, went on to win the race with strong showings in Owen and Grant counties. On the Republican side, Brian Linder beat Scott Bruce in Gallatin County 97 to 90.

Worker dies in accident at Sterling

Woman crushed in mine

Angela Common, 37, of Carrollton, was killed at Sterling Materials limestone mine last Tuesday, May 15, after she was thrown out of a large earth-moving machine she was operating.

"She was dead when we got there," said Gallatin County EMS director and Fire Chief Barry Alexander who arrived at the mine shortly after the accident occurred. "There was nothing we could do for her. It looked like she may have lost control of her machine and was ejected as it climbed up one of the sloped walls. I believe she then became pinched between the machine and the wall."

Common was pronounced dead at the scene by Gallatin County coroner Jack Hughes. She had four children, a grandchild and had recently returned to work at the mine after a leave of absence.

Members of the U. S. Department of Labor Mine Safety and Health Administration were at Sterling Materials doing a routine inspection at the time of accident. The inspectors closed the mine after the accident to allow a complete investigation and it remained closed this week. No one at Sterling Materials would comment on the accident.

Gallatin County Sheriff Josh Neale, who also arrived at the mine shortly after the accident, said Common had years of experience working at the mine. The large earth-mover she was operating, however, was new and had arrived at the mine the day before the accident.

According to federal records, at least one other person has died at Sterling Materials, which is located on U. S. 42 in eastern Gallatin County. In 1992, Isidro Obil, 22, died after his clothes became tangled in a conveyor belt 600 ft. below the surface. The company was cited because the belt was unguarded but the citation was lifted after a guard was installed.

Two workers at the mine were seriously injured in a 1998 cave-in, 550 ft. below the surface, as they inspected a newly excavated mine shaft. A slab of limestone fell on them but they recovered.

In 2005, the government gave the mine a major safety award called the "Sentinels of Safety" after it operated more than 92,000 hours without a "lost time" accident.

Since then, however, the federal agency that regulates mining notes there have been three accidents in which workers were injured including one in 2010 when a grind-

The library says thanks

The library officially opened its new $850,000 wing last Friday which was paid for by donations, a federal low-interest loan and savings. At a luncheon to honor its patrons, library director Shirley Warnick handed out commemorative bricks to the donors. I have lots to do this summer

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

Because I have a little puppy that demands attention, I'll be staying home this summer. No trips to the beach, no motorcycle rides down the Blue Ridge Parkway and no sailing adventures on Lake Erie.

That's fine with me because I have a long list of things to do around here that should keep me entertained all summer long.

First, I want to visit Mayme Walters's deer orphanage in Warsaw. Every spring, people bring Mayme fawns that are injured or have lost their mothers. Because of her tender, loving care, the fawns grow up healthy and strong until it's safe to return them to the wild. I'm looking forward to spending an afternoon in Mayme's backyard doing nothing but playing with the young deer.

I also plan to eat lunch at the newly renovated scenic overlook on U.S. 42 near Sugar Bay. It gives you a great view of the widest part of the Ohio River and the newly added picnic tables and landscaping make it a great place enjoy the view. I'm glad Jacqueline Mylor, Sonny Rider, Bernie Wessels and other people worked so hard to bring us that scenic spot.

People watching is always fun and I'll have a great opportunity to do some of that at the end of next month. That's when more than 100,000 folks will head to Gallatin County for the big NASCAR race. I hope they'll all be able to get to the racetrack this year now that Bruton Smith and the Commonwealth of Kentucky have spent millions of dollars on roads and places to park.

And that's not my only opportunity for people watching this summer. There'll be hundreds going to the county fair in June and to Warsaw's River Days celebration on the Fourth of July. I can't wait to see this year's fireworks display because it gets better each year.

There's nothing like a quite morning on the water with a fishing pole in your hands. I'm going to make sure I get down to the new dock on Craigs Creek Lake the city and county put there. The river and lake are two of Gallatin County's best attractions and I'm glad we now have a public dock that makes it easy to enjoy the water.

The Sunset Grill is a great place to meet people and watch the sunset when the weather is nice. That's also an important item on my list for the summer.

There's nothing better than a little fun in the summer sunshine. I hope to get some on a boat ride on the Ohio River thanks to Carol Spitzer and the good people at the marina she owns, Pier 99 Marina.

Golf is on the list and so is eating homegrown tomatoes, sweet corn and watermelons. It'll be fun to teach my puppy to swim, to catch a Cincinnati Reds game and to enjoy my new front porch swing.

Monday is Memorial Day, the unofficial start of summer. I couldn't be happier this most special time of year is returning. Let the fun begin.

The true meaning of Memorial Day

I look forward to Memorial Day as do most Americans. It marks the unofficial beginning of summer, the beginning of barbecue season, the opening of public swimming pools, big parades and small parades like the ones in Hudson, Ohio, my home town.

This day captures a lot of what's right with the United States of America. I never forget what Memorial Day is really about. It is about remembering all those who have died while in uniform. The statistics tell us that 1,343,812 died in defense of this nation, with another 38,159 missing in action.

It's such a large number, I have to read it several times to let it sink in. I say the number, softly, out loud and it doesn't get any smaller.

That's a lot of members of the Armed Forces who wrote a blank check to the United States for "up to and including their lives".

For me, I take a few minutes to retreat to my most inner-self. We all have that place in us.

Mine takes place on my lanai, overlooking a peaceful lake. The names come to mind: Bill, U.S. Army, killed at Remagen Bridge; Bob, U.S. Navy, killed over North Vietnam; Chad, U.S. Army, killed in Baghdad; Ivan, U.S. Army, killed in Ghazni Province, Afghanistan.

There are more, but, unfortunately, the list is just too long. They all left behind wives and children. It's my personal remembrances, in complete solitude, with tears, once a year. I wish it were different.

That's my story and I'm stickin' to it.

How Rural Development helped the library expand

USDA Rural Development officials were in Warsaw last week to help celebrate the Gallatin County Library expansion.

State Director Tom Fern said Rural Development awarded the library board a Community Facilities direct loan in the amount of $425,000 to construct a 3,000-square-foot addition to the library. The project will provide more computers, create meeting space for local organizations and classes and provide more space for books and other items for to the public.

"No community is complete without a vibrant public library, which provides small town residents with access to tools to improve their quality of life," said Fern. "Libraries play a vital role in bridging urban and rural communities by providing access to books and computers. Oftentimes, the public library is the only place in a rural town where people can access the Internet to do research for school, take advantage of distance learning opportunities, look for a job or market a product or service."

USDA announced the Rural Libraries Initiative in December 2009, making $100 million in USDA Rural Development CF loan and grant funds available in fiscal year 2010 to support the construction, renovation, expansion or improvement of public libraries across rural America.

In the last two years, Rural Development has awarded nearly $10 million in funding for the construction of new libraries in six Kentucky counties, including Lewis, Breckinridge, Hancock, Owen and Trimble. The Community Facility Loan approved for Gallatin County was for a 40-year term at an interest rate of 4.25 percent. The total project cost of $625,000 includes a $200,000 applicant contribution.

Kentucky Commentary

Tuesday's primaries will have big implications this fall

Tuesday's primary election received little statewide attention, but it contains harbingers of Kentucky's political direction, especially for its Republican Party.

The biggest race was the Republican primary for Congress in the 4th District, which stretches from parts of Jefferson and Spencer counties to Gallatin County and Northern Kentucky, then up the Ohio River to Ashland. It's Republican territory, so Tuesday's winner is likely to wear the title of U.S. representative next year.

The race was a test of strength for the tea party, which was the energizing force that gave Republicans control of the House in 2010 and proved its continuing strength this month with the defeat of U.S. Sen. Richard Lugar in Indiana's GOP primary.

The tea party candidate in the 4th District was the intriguing Thomas Massie, an MIT-educated engineer with several patents who came back to his home Lewis County and got elected county judge-executive in 2010. While he was doing that, he was also supporting Rand Paul, now our junior U.S. senator. Paul is supporting his tea party ally.

Massie endorses Paul's budget proposal and seems to mirror his attitude toward bringing federal dollars to Kentucky. When the candidates on last week's KET debate were asked where their loyalties would lie when it came to federal spending, Massie replied, "My loyalty lies to my country."

Massie has appeared to be the 4th District front-runner, since he has drawn the most attacks in the seven-way primary and was supported by a Texas-based "super PAC" that's spending at least $500,000 to help him.

Last week the PAC began attacking the establishment candidates, Boone County Judge-executive Gary Moore and state Rep. Alecia Webb-Edgington of Fort Wright in Kenton County. Webb-Edgington is arguably the more establishment candidate, with endorsements from former U.S. Sen. Jim Bunning and Rep. Geoff Davis, who is giving up the seat after eight years. With her legislative voting record and background as a state trooper, she also has the National Rifle Association endorsement.

Moore, a longtime official in the state's largest majority Republican county, is an establishment figure but has the implicit support of the Rev. Hershael York, the leading clerical voice of Christian conservatives in Kentucky politics.

He was trying to peel off Massie's tea party support with mailers that claims Massie "Runs like Paul and governs like Obama," citing budget increases in Lewis County. Massie disputes the assertions.

The Moore-Massie tussle may have helped Webb-Edgington, who is the only woman in the race. The nomination was likely to be decided in Northern Kentucky, the district's most populous area.

The next rung on Tuesday's ballot held races for the state Senate, which are unlikely to result in a loss of Republican control but could help decide whether Sen. David Williams remains Senate president.

Races for the state House will indicate whether Republicans really have a chance to take control of the chamber this fall.

The primary is only a hint of what could be a pivotal election to come, in which many Republicans will run against President Obama instead of their opponents. Pay attention to the "uncommitted" vote among Democrats for president Tuesday night.

City Council

In other Wbusiness: •Council heard the first reading of a law to regulate scooters in the city. There was much debate about what kind of scooters would be included in the law that already regulates skateboards and roller skates.

"Skateboards are pretty much staying where they're supposed to be," said WPD officer Brent Caldwell. "The problem is parents who give kids battery-operated scooters and they head out to U.S. 42. I don't want to cover an accident where a kid gets hurt and is sent to Carroll County Hospital."

There will be more discussion at next month's meeting.

•There was continued discussion about sidewalk and street repair. Shupie Sullivan, who own two rental properties on Market Street, has offered to do the work of removing the sidewalk there and preparing it for new pavement. The city would pay only for concrete and steel but there are questions about paving around the "Old Show Building" that's in the same area.

Councilman Randy Jones mentioned the need for repaving in front of the Masonic Lodge behind the Methodist Church on Market Street.

A list of possible projects will be discussed at June's meeting.

•Warsaw Clerk Marksberry said the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet would install crosswalks in front of the Courthouse on Main Cross Street.

•Council argued about a proposed law to fine security alarm owners for false alarms that alert Warsaw Police.

"This was a big problem when I worked dispatch," said councilman Jamie Gould who supports the new law. "It often happened at the school with coaches coming in and not punching in the code."

The new law faced opposition from councilmen Jerry Hunt and Brown. It will come up for a second reading at next month's meeting.

•Council heard the first reading of a plan to charge $10 when Warsaw Police are called to unlock a car door. Several members of council opposed the plan and it will likely face opposition at next month's meeting.

•The City of Warsaw will donate breakfast and lunch for the senior class during graduation preparations.

•Council met in Closed Session to discuss a personnel issue.

Infant dies in car accident

A Warsaw infant was killed early Saturday morning in a wreck that police say was caused by an underage drunken driver. The accident occurred about 9:15 a.m. on 11th street in Carrollton near the entrance to General Butler State Park.

The car, which was being driven by a 17-year old, failed to negotiate a curve, left the road and hit a tree. The driver wasn't identified because he's a minor.

Two passengers in the car, Jaquolin Valoria Vilalva Rocha, 18, of Warsaw and Leonardo Lopez Sanchez, 22, of Louisville were flown to University of Louisville Hospital with life-threatening injuries. Neither had been wearing seat belts.

Rocha at one time had been a student at Gallatin County High School but did not graduate. Her baby, who was not in an infant car seat, was taken to Carroll County Hospital where it was pronounced dead.

Police have charged the driver with manslaughter, driving under the influence, failure to use a child restraint, no operator's license, failure to maintain insurance, failure to wear a seat belt and two counts of wanton endangerment. Although he's a minor, prosecutors may try him as an adult.

The accident remains under investigation by the State Police.

'Founding Gardeners' lecture to be held in Vevay

Andrea Wulf, renowned author of Founding Gardeners - the Revolutionary Generation, will lecture at the Hoosier Theater in Vevay on Friday, May 25, at 7 p.m.

She will examine the fascination that gardens, plants, agriculture and the expansion westward held for America's revolutionary founders.

Through U.S. presidents George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, the author links their horticulture endeavors to the political sphere for which they are remembered. For the founding fathers, gardening agriculture and botany were elemental passions, as deeply ingrained in their character as their belief in liberty for the nation they were creating.

Ms. Wulf has lectured to large audiences at the Royal Geographical Society in London, the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia, Monticello, the Art Museums of Colonial Williamsburg, Mount Vernon Estate and Gardens and more.

The lecture is free and open to the public due to the generous support from the Cornelius O'Brien Lecture Series.

Sports in Kentucky

by Bob Watkins

Reflections on my 40 years in writing profession were prompted by Frank DeFord's just arrived autobiography Over Time, My Life as a Sports-writer, and e-mail from a fine Catholic fellow, Mike Giorgio who urged me to put aside modesty and celebrate a little. Presumably, aloud.
Forty years ago this month, I penned my first column. Don't remember the subject, but maybe Roberto Clemente.
To run the numbers, permit me a baseball tabulation.
Cal Ripken Jr. played 2,632nd consecutive games; Ted Williams had 2,654 hits including a home run in his last at bat; And, Roberto Clemente had 3,000 hits before his untimely demise. An aggregate total of Ripken, Clemente and Teddy Ballgame numbers is roughly the times I've met a deadline since 1972 – neighborhood of 6,724 and been paid to do so.
What a joy. For good health to answer every bell, Thank you, God!
This week, a visit, even summarized, to high and lowlights of four decades would require too much of your time. But we can have a bit of fun with it.

• On one visit to Wrigley Field, a travel companion (native of Sonora, Ky. at the time) attempted to introduce a surprised Chicago mail carrier walking his beat to a mail carrier in our party from Upton, Kentucky with: "Hey," he said, "Since you carry the mail, maybe you two know each other?"

• In 1999 a lifelong friend and I drove to Boston for baseball's All-Star game at Fenway Park. My pal got to witness his idol Ted Williams do something the Splendid Splinter had refused to do for all his 19-year career in Beantown, tip his hat to fans. It was a moment.

• Cooperstown, New York. Baseball's Hall of Fame and the town are spiritual and hallowed places. Among them baseball card displays, some were so precious and pricey I had to leave lest I become nauseous remembering contents of my long ago disappeared card collection.
• Through the years I have privileged to visit Bear Bryant's temple in Tuscaloosa where the Bear upbraided me for asking a question.

Here's what our friends and neighbors have been doing:

The monthly Book Club met at the Gallatin County Library last Wednesday to discuss last month's book assignment, Rin Tin Tin, by Susan Orlean. Attending members Janet McGaha, Helen Walker, Betty Wright, Marie Allison, John Bennet, Bonnie McKee, and Lonni Faller agreed that while the subject matter was interesting and the book well researched, however, it seemed rather disjointed in its presentation. The next assigned book is The Little Black Dress, by Susan McBride. The ladies in the group think it will be a good read, but John Bennet, the only male member, is not so sure it's going to be his cup of tea.

Don Eddie and Linda Darlene Kaiser of Monk Spar Road, would like to congratulate Jimmy Allen and Donna R. Kaiser on the birth of their granddaughter, born May 15th to parents Jay and Jennie Ryan of Los Angeles. Jimmy and Donna are former Gallatin County residents currently residing in Sonoma Valley, California, and say they look forward to reading our newspaper every week.

The Gallatin County Public Library has an Outreach Program that will deliver books to shut-ins, the elderly, and disabled persons. Anyone who wishes to avail themselves of this wonderful service may contact Ann Webster at the library.

Beach held a 13th birthday celebration for their son, Boston, last Saturday, well attended by friends and family. Aside from the birthday boy himself, the star of the celebration was a delicious chocolate cake, and I know it was great because they sent me a piece, delivered by my young friend, Kayla Beach. Many thanks to the Beach family for the cake, and HAPPY BIRTHDAY, BOSTON.

Shirley Chipman and Lanette Morrison enjoyed supper at Hometown Pizza Friday night. On Saturday, Mae Wallace, Shirley Chipman and Lanette Morrison attended the dance recital for Jama Morrison at Ms. Katrina's School of Dance in Carrollton. Shirley's Sunday dinner guests were Derina, Savannah, and Autaun Doolin and Lanette Morrison. Later in the afternoon, Shirley enjoyed the company of Jama and Destanee. Sunday night, Mae Wallace and Shirley enjoyed supper at the Yum Yum Shop.

Alice Johnson had a nice weekend with her grandchildren, Brooke Alexander, and Hannah and Rebekah Mitchell. The girls Friday night with the Johnsons. On Saturday morning, Alice took the children to Burlington to peruse yard sales, accompanied by daughter-in-law, Katie Johnson, and grandsons, Colt, and Corbin Johnson. On Sunday after church, Alice took grandchildren, Ethan and Brooke Alexander, to Cheddar's for lunch.

Lunsford and Amburgey wed

Katie Lunsford and Derek Amburgey were united in marriage, Saturday, May 19, at the Epicenter Church of God in Warsaw by Rev. Chris Combs.

Derek is a graduate of Gallatin County High School and is employed by Dorman in Warsaw.

asking what I did for Mother's Day, and I told them all to watch this space. We celebrated Mother's Day on Saturday, since my daughter-in-law works on Sundays. The children arrived about 4 p.m., bearing gifts of a digital camera, a cell phone, new bathroom faucets, and a musical card containing cash. They also did numerous chores for me that I am unable to do, including fixing my kitchen light, putting in the air conditioner, cutting the honeysuckle bush that loves to cover my kitchen window, installing the aforementioned new faucets, and unstoping two of my drains. We ordered pizza so that I didn't have to go out, and had a wonderful time just being together. Many thanks and much love to my sons, Steve and Larry Faller, my daughter-in-law, Christy Faller, and my grandsons Shawn and Tim Faller.

Jeff and Leslie Baillie, and Jeff's mother, Bertha Baillie, have just returned from a trip to Florida. They spent one day at Daytona Beach, and visited with Jeff's brother and sister-in-law, Rick and Michelle Baillie. Leslie said they spent most of their time preparing their home in Pomona Park where they plan to move in the near future. Pomona Park is near central Florida, and was originally settled at the end of the Civil War by former Union soldiers. It was originally known for its abundant citrus groves. However, a hard freeze in 1895 forced the grove owners to abandon their homes, barns, and farming equipment. Today there are few, if any, citrus groves left. It is a beautiful area, with lush plants and interesting wildlife, and is not far from the former home of writer Marjorie Rawlings, author of the best-selling book, The Yearling.

Mary Jane Day has had a busy week! Last Wednesday, she and Barbara Finrock attended the Homemakers State Meeting in Lexington. Mary Jane attended the Library Luncheon Open House on Friday, and said that those who missed it truly missed a lot, as it is beautiful. On Saturday, she attended a class for the Kansas City Barbecue Society in Bardstown, accompanied by Wayne Rassman, his fiancée, Trudy, and Jane and Bobby Searcy. Mary Jane said she learned a lot about cooking and judging cook-offs, but mostly ate a lot.

Betty and Boyd Lionberger attended the elementary school graduation ceremony of their granddaughter, Hannah Hamilton, last Thursday evening. Hannah graduated from New Haven Elementary and next year will be attending Gray Middle School in Boone County. Hannah is a straight-A honor student and will be testing for the Governor's Cup. Other family members attending the ceremony were Hannah's parents, Julie and Tim Hamilton; her brother, Matthew; and her older sister and brother-in-law, Kristina and Rob Turner. CONGRATULATIONS, HANNAH!

Betty and Boyd attended the Relay for Life fund raiser, Saturday evening, at the City Park. Betty said they enjoyed it tremendously and were there from 6 p.m. till midnight.

Gallatin Library holds luncheon, open house to celebrate addition Almost 100 persons attended the celebratory luncheon held at the Gallatin County Library last Friday. It climaxed the "Expanding Our Horizons" campaign which made possible the new addition to the existing building.

A partial list of guests included: Wayne Onkst of Frankfort, state librarian; Ehmet Hayes, head architect; donors Kathy Hanley of Gallatin Steel, Gallatin County Judge/executive Ken McFarland; Dan Hambrie of Dorman Products; Pat Carrico, memorial; Rosalee Ramsey of the Bank of Kentucky, and Greg Goff, First National Bank of Carrollton.

Guests were encouraged to stroll the newly added library addition and enjoy the handsomely remodeled section of the original space.

Tying the two areas together were the deep, rich colors of the colonial period. Rich gold, warm deep red and soft grey-greens predominated. They integrated with the architectural style of the original library building. Bookcases of warm cherry wood completed the look.

Along the walls and around the window frames were handsome, large-scale murals done by artist Tammy Stephens of Latonia. The paintings depicted colorful local scenes, as well as serving to bring the outside in.

The unusual bookcases in the new children's room, which were shaped to resemble trees, were crafted by Jeff Fuehner, local woodworking artist.

The buffet lunch was held in the library's new, enlarged meeting room. Library Director Shirley Warnick greeted friends, guests, and contributors to the new wing. She introduced library board president Helen Walker, who in turn introduced the board members: Dick Koenig, Holly Hightchew, Joe Wright, Mary Jane Day, and Lora Beth Sadler, financial advisor.

Other guests present were former long-time library director Brenda Hawkins and husband Sonny Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Alexander, PVA Ruth Middleton, Magistrate Eric Moore, Jailer Jerry Webb. Sheriff Josh Neale, and County Agriculture Agent David Hull were also among the 90 guests present for the celebratory lunch.

The consensus among staff and guests was the library addition was a job well done to be enjoyed for many years by the citizens of Gallatin County and their children.

Planting by the Signs

by Phil Case

If you're planting your garden according to the phases of the moon and signs of the zodiac, here's the information for this week.

The moon is in the light phase now and will remain there until Monday, June 4 when the next full moon is scheduled to appear. Through this period be planting only above-ground producers.

According to the signs of the zodiac, what's left of today (Wednesday) and all of Thursday are ruled by Cancer (the breast), one of the very fruitful signs. On either of these days you may plant any above-ground producers.

Take a break Friday, Saturday and Sunday to enjoy Memorial Day weekend. I know it's a bummer but all those days are ruled by Leo (the heart), one of the killing signs when I just can't, in good faith, recommend planting anything at all.

Then beginning on Memorial Day, May 28, and continuing for the rest of May we find a series of flowering signs in force just in time to start, finish or augment your summer flower planting. With the moon in the light phase, the sign is in first Virgo (the bowels) on May 28-29, followed by Libra (the reins) on May 30-31.

A plethora, as they say, of "bloom days!"

And then comes June, which opens with three straight Scorpio days (the secrets), with the light moon in force. Fantastic days for above-ground producers.

June, in fact, as a ton of very fertile days. But more on that next week – or in the June overview in the River Times.

May is Water Awareness Month

Come on, Kentucky—Georgia is leaving us in the dust! Yes, it's just a friendly competition, but we need all the help we can get to prove Kentucky cares about the environment.

Help the Commonwealth win the water conservation challenge by participating. Here's how you can save 40 gallons of water a day for your county and Kentucky Pledge now. Across the southern United States individuals are taking the 40 Gallon Challenge. The 40 Gallon Challenge is a regional campaign that challenges residents to conserve at least 40 gallons of water per day. Currently, Kentucky only has less than 500 pledges, on par with North Carolina and Mississippi. You can look at each state's pledges by rolling your cursor over the interactive map at <http://www.40gallonchallenge.org>.

On average Kentuckians use anywhere from 100 to 150 gallons of water per person, per day. To eliminate any excuses, here are some of the no-cost water-saving suggestions you can start doing today:

-Run the dishwasher only when full (saves 2 gallons).

-Turn off water in between rinsing dishes or brushing teeth (saves 5 and 8 gallons).

-Shorten showers; fill bathtub only half-full (saves 5 and 18 gallons).

-Do not use the toilet as a garbage can (saves 2 gallons).

-Reduce laundry by one load a week; wash full loads only (saves 5 gallons).

-Start a compost pile for food waste (saves 4 gallons).

-Capture water in a rain barrel for irrigation (saves 5 gallons).

-Sweep sidewalks and driveways with a broom rather than spraying with hose (saves 22 gallons).

-Limit and reduce lawn and garden irrigation (depending, can save 20-80 gallons).

-Mulch two to three inches around trees and plants (saves 25 gallons).

Taking the 40 Gallon Challenge is as simple as filling out the Pledge Card, either online at <http://www.40gallonchallenge.org/> or at your local U.K. County Extension office in Warsaw.
